Pretty Luncheon Today for the White House Guests.

OTHER TIMELY TOPICS

Next week starts off with a wedding and may finish up with another. Then, for events in which the little god does not figure to such a paramount degree, every date has its own lengthy program and everybody who is anybody is at their wits' end to get in half they want to accomplish. Of luncheons there are so many that many women have yet several to decline, all of which goes to show that those who give feasts get them, too. The same could be said of the dinners and their givers as well as of other attractions. The 1900 dinner dance will be inaugurated also, the first of the series being set for Tuesday, when Mrs. Wallach will be the hostess. Mrs. John W. Thompson, Mrs. David Jayne Hill and Mrs. John B. Wight will entertain at the largest teas of the week.

It goes without saying that Mr. and Mrs. It goes without saying that Mr. and Mrs. John R. McLean's reception and musical in honor of the admiral of the navy and Mrs. Dewey, on Friday next, is likely to be the evening tvent of the season. The princely hospitality which has always marked their entertainments will be even surpassed on this occasion. The number of invitations is very large, and the artists who will appear are from the Metropolitan Opera House in New York with the Baltimore Symphony.

One of the prettiest luncheons which has One of the prettiest luncheons which has marked the hospitalities extended Miss Grace McKinley and Miss Sarah Duncan was given by the Misses Evans, daughters of Commissioner and Mrs. Evans, today. To meet them there were present Miss Margaret Hitchcock, Miss Kauffmann, Miss Hocke, Miss Taylor, Miss Maud Talmage, Miss Hurst, Miss Hemmick, Miss Wills, Miss Sowers and Miss Farnsworth.
